Location Fairfax Pay Band No Response Salary Commensurate with education and experience. Web Announcement

Instructional Faculty (nontenure-track)

George Mason University invites applications for an Instructional Faculty position funded by the Commonwealth of Virginia under a consortium of five universities (i.e., GMU, JMU, ODU, RSU and NSU) to prepare teachers in the area of visual impairments.

Courses are delivered via a combination of distance education and summer face-to-face institutes. Distance education techniques include video broadcasting, interactive videoconferencing, Web conferencing, and asynchronous course management tools such as Blackboard and WebCT. During the summer session, one-week face-to-face courses are offered.

The consortium is seeking candidates interested in a full-time, nontenure-track, instructional faculty position to lead consortium activities; develop curriculum; teach the primary VI courses (at least two per semester); conduct research and program evaluation; coordinate the program; and teach/coordinate in-service courses in the summer. Program coordination includes recruiting students, hiring adjunct faculty, managing distance education components and supervising tech support personnel, coordinating meetings, communicating with consortium members, managing and planning budgets, and reporting to the Virginia Department of Education.

Earned doctorate (or admission to candidacy) in special education (vision) or related field, university teaching experience, and two years experience working with children and youth with disabilities required. Broad experience in distance education highly desirable. Established or very promising record of scholarship and external funding preferred. Special Instructions to Applicants Mason Ad Statement George Mason University is an innovative, entrepreneurial institution with national distinction in a range of academic fields. Enrollment is 30,000, with students studying in over 150 degree programs at campuses in Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, Prince William and the United Arab Emirates. Equity Statement George Mason University is an equal opportunity employer encouraging diversity. Posting Date 11-18-2008 Job Close Date Open Until Filled
